2. In It Together

Boris wiggled up onto an ice floe. It was getting harder these days to find a free patch of space on the sheets of floating ice. His fellow seals often fought over the melting ice in Antarctica, and it worried Boris. He remembered when the ice wasn't so limited, and the water was much colder. His favorite food was krill. They used to be plentiful in the seas, too. Now he often felt hungry because it was hard to get enough.

"Hey, Boris," his buddy, Dobs, said. He slithered over to him. "Did you see the ship that arrived today?"

"Ship? What ship?" Boris tried to be aware whenever the humans came to Antarctica. He always found them so interesting. They wore bulky coats, used strange tools, and stared at him a lot. They usually arrived during the part of the year that had the most light. It was easier for them to do their work when Antarctica wasn't dark for months at a time.

Extremely satisfied

Quite possibly the best purchase I've made since using TPT 7 years ago. Kids love it. Teacher loves it. It is a win win. Super easy to use for both teacher and student. Highly recommend.
