Main Idea and Details

Everybody knows the Pledge of Allegiance, but did you know that people cannot be forced to say it? Before 1943, some laws required people to recite the pledge. When two grade school students named Marie and Gathie Barnett refused to participate, they were expelled from school. They brought the case to the Supreme Court, who ruled that people cannot be forced to say the pledge. The court announced its decision on Flag Day in 1943.
